

This two volume set was written to help parents become what the Lord wants them to be. The author gives us the following instructions: "The institution of home is in itself a divine application of the law of economy. It contains the first suggestion of the division of labor. The evening hours are the holy hours of home life. They are the hours in which there is the freest play of all the hallowed influences that come from the domestic relation. Whether we regard the Sabbath as divinely appointed or as growing out of the instincts and necessities of man's moral and spiritual nature, the experience of man has demonstrated that it sustains a vital relation to our highest welfare."
